

Lonny

magazine

74 PAGES OF
ECO-CHIC

Space City Style:
Lonny does Houston

Laura Day:

Designer, editor and mother. Take a look inside 16r Madison Avenue digs.

issue

4

APRIL/MAY 2010

decorate

subscribe

archive

about us

advertise

Navigation bar with icons for Index, Fullscreen, Layout, Share, Search, Print, and page number 227.

blogger style

I firmly believe that eco is the new reality," says Justine Suh, founder of Green Scout Report, a blog dedicated to responsible business and individuals as they work to achieve sustainability. After ten years in the fashion industry, Suh sought "hip" resources for eco living with little avail, so she took matters into her own hands and devised her own. Fun and modern, her blog provides easy-to-digest green tips, gift guides, company profiles, and interviews. "My blog is different because it's written from a New Yorker's point of view versus California, where it's more progressive," says Suh. "We may have a long way to go in NYC, but it doesn't mean individuals and companies aren't doing amazing things."

"A portable solar charger can charge all your handheld electronic products at home or on the move, anywhere under the sun."
 Classic Solar Solar Charger, $19.95 solar.com

"It's a stylish reusable water bottle, plus KOR donates 5% of all sales to a select group of nonprofits that focus on water-related issues."
 KOR Hydration Vessel, $25.95 korwater.com

"These handcrafted candles are housed in subtly glam porcelain vessels and are enhanced with environmentally friendly refinements such as essential oils, soy, and beeswax."
 Joya Candles Porcelain Collection, $48 joyastudio.com

"These bowls, which make a great housewarming gift, are handcrafted from single pieces of fallen lenga wood by Chile and Argentina's indigenous Mapuche people, who are being exploited for their oil-rich land."
 Patagonia Natural Wood Bowl/Trey, $75 www.patagonia.com

225 Lonny April 2013

"Fun schematic maps of various cities, featuring their neighborhoods, icons, and landmarks, adorn these simple cotton totes, making it easy to be green!"
 MapTote, $25 maptote.com

"West Elm's certified organic cotton is grown and processed without the use of herbicides or pesticides, making it better for you and better for the planet."
 West Elm Organic Bedding, $75 westelm.com

"Produced with 100% post-consumer recycled paper, these cards and gift wrap come in fun prints, like skulls and crossbones, that make a statement when you give a gift."
 Saffair Quack Cards and Gift Wrap, $1.95 saffair.com

"I like what ethical/eco-designer Lauren Bush has done by benefitting the women of the Republic of the Congo through Women for Women International."
 #111 Sierra Mist Dress Lauren Perez Abelle, $45 sierra.com

"The reusable bamboo utensil provides a great way to eat a waste-free lunch, while reducing your 'forkprint.'"
 To-Go Ware GoFlex! Utensil Set, $18 www.pangea.com

"Pangea utilizes whole, living plant essences. Their products are biodegradable so you can benefit from the vitamins, minerals, and essential oils in the purest way possible."
 Pangea Organics Body Care Products, $9.24 pangeaorganics.com

"These handcrafted candles are housed in subtly glam porcelain vessels and are enhanced with environmentally friendly refinements such as essential oils, soy, and beeswax."

Joya Candles Porcelain Collection, $48 joyastudio.com

